PROGRAMME HIGHLIGHTS

The South-east Asian region is an area rich in energy supplies, developed via an abundance of upstream production and renewable energy assets, and further leveraged through an extensive array of downstream refining and petrochemical facilities. This entire value chain is serviced by a growing number of specialist energy insurers located both in the region and in other global insurance hubs. This 2-day programme provides an overview of the energy value chain coupled with a detailed insight of the insurance industry that supports it. This course is delivered by a panel of industry experts, enabling participants to gain an enhanced understanding of the influences and motivations of the various stakeholders servicing this industry, including the manner in which they interact.

KEY LEARNING OUTCOMES

By the end of the programme, participants will be able to:

- Gain an awareness of the entire value chain in energy supply, be it hydrocarbon or renewal based, and how the insurance business supports this.

- Describe the scope and coverage of the various insurance policies for energy risks.
